

Fun stuff!

Make it

DAY OF THE DEAD PIZZA

Cook up a scrumptious skull for your Halloween celebrations...

What you'll need

- Ready-made pizza base
- Pizza sauce or tomato purée
- Mozzarella
- Black olives, some sliced, others halved
- Cherry tomatoes, halved
- Mushrooms, sliced
- Red onion, sliced
- Peppers, sliced
- Tinned sweetcorn

Start here!

1 Carefully trim a small amount from either side of your pizza base to make a skull shape.

2 Cover the base with pizza sauce.

3 Cut pieces of mozzarella for the eyes, the nose and the mouth shape, and a triangle to decorate the forehead.

4 Add black olives for the teeth, pupils and nose, then add two rounds of pepper for the eyes. Now decorate the rest of the skull using the other veggies. Check out the pictures on these pages for inspiration!

5 With the help of an adult, cook in a pre-heated oven (see pizza-base packet for instructions), then tuck in!

TOP TIP Ask an adult to help you slice all the veggies!

The first ever Day of the Dead parade took place last year in Mexico City

1 & 2 NOVEMBER

ALL ABOUT

DAY OF THE DEAD!

If you're invited to a Día de los Muertos (Day of the Dead) party, don't freak out – it's actually a really happy event!

Dating back 2,500 years and celebrated mainly in Mexico and other parts of Latin America, Day of the Dead is a time for families to think about loved ones who have died, and remember all the great things about them. The two-day holiday is a festival of loud music, funky dancing, dressing up, eating sugary treats and having fun with your friends and family – whether they're alive or dead!

Cemeteries are decorated with candles and flowers

Families sing and play music by the graves of their loved ones

Sugar skulls are used for decorations – and for eating!

SEND US YOUR MAKE-IT PICS!
KIDS@NGKIDS.CO.UK

Q Who did Frankenstein take to the party? A His ghoul friend! Q Where do ghosts buy their food? A At the ghost-cry shop!